

Source: City of Burlington, Building Department, October 2016.

The number of building permits issued is a key indicator of construction and tenant improvement activity in the community. The graph above presents the number of building permits issued per month for residential and commercial constructions and building improvements. These permits are a source of revenue for the City and an investment in local businesses and infrastructure which has a direct benefit in the assessment of property taxes. Construction activity is also a source of job creation and shows the interest investors and companies have in developing in the City of Burlington.